Rivers

Spain is home to a number of beautiful rivers, including the Guadalquivir, Duero, Ebro, Tajo, Jarama, and Manzanares. The Guadalquivir is the longest river in Spain, flowing for over 650 kilometers. It is a major source of water for the region of Andalusia, and its banks are lined with beautiful towns and villages.

The Duero is another major river in Spain, flowing for over 890 kilometers. It is a major source of water for the regions of Castile and León and Extremadura, and its banks are lined with vineyards and olive groves.

The Ebro is the largest river in Spain by volume, flowing for over 930 kilometers. It is a major source of water for the regions of Aragon, Catalonia, and Valencia, and its banks are lined with cities and towns.

The Tajo is the longest river in the Iberian Peninsula, flowing for over 1,000 kilometers. It is a major source of water for the regions of Castile-La Mancha, Extremadura, and Portugal, and its banks are lined with castles and palaces.

The Jarama is a river that flows through the Community of Madrid. It is a popular spot for fishing and camping, and its banks are lined with parks and gardens.

The Manzanares is a river that flows through the city of Madrid. It is a popular spot for walking and cycling, and its banks are lined with museums and monuments.

Lakes

Spain is also home to a number of beautiful lakes, including the lakes of Covadonga, Banyoles, Sanabria, and Bañolas. The lakes of Covadonga are located in the Picos de Europa mountains, and are surrounded by stunning scenery. Lake Banyoles is located in the province of Girona, and is a popular spot for swimming and boating. Lake Sanabria is located in the province of Zamora, and is the largest glacial lake in Spain. Lake Bañolas is located in the province of Girona, and is a popular spot for birdwatching.

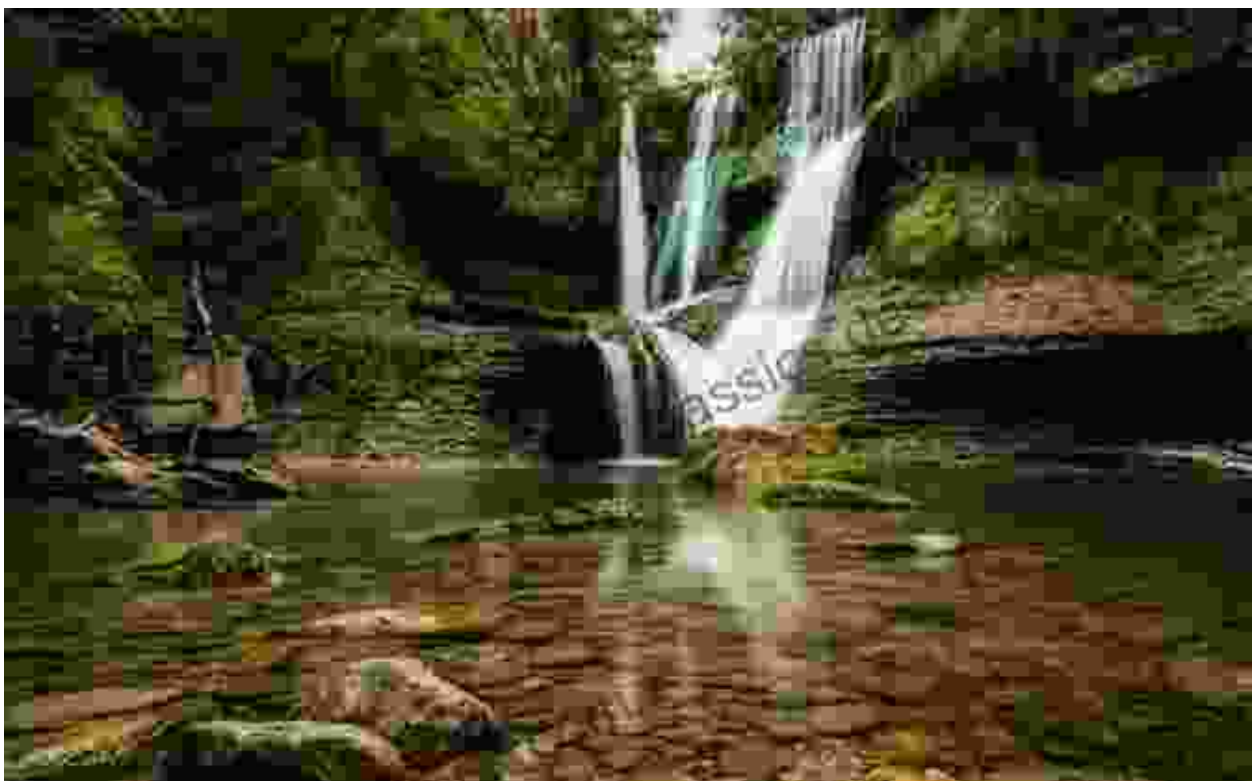

Waterfalls

Spain is also home to a number of beautiful waterfalls, including the Salto del Nervión, the Cascada de Ordesa, and the Cascada del Algar. The Salto del Nervión is located in the province of Burgos, and is the highest waterfall in Spain. The Cascada de Ordesa is located in the Pyrenees mountains, and is a popular spot for hiking and climbing. The Cascada del Algar is located in the province of Alicante, and is a popular spot for swimming and picnicking.

Spain is a country with a rich and diverse natural heritage, and its rivers, lakes, and waterfalls are some of its most beautiful attractions. Whether you are looking for a place to relax and enjoy the scenery, or you are looking for a place to adventure and explore, Spain has something to offer everyone.
